

BADICAL INDUSTRIES

Best

& Worst

Safest thing to Support: Troops. The ribbons, the car magnets, the bumper stickers. There's no need to flash it to change people's minds; no one is opposed to the troops. wow, you don't want people you know to die young? You must have a huge heart.

Safest thing to Hate:

Cancer. People who wear those "Cancer Sucks" t-shirts are taking such a risk! There's that possibility someone who likes cancer might be offended. Why don't you buy a shirt with some other axiom, like "Crying is Sad" or "Don't Pollute."

Best Dude:

Tendencies. Bad-ass Freshman with iPod, tough, wears boots, probably smokes pot, huge penis, rides a chop, facial hair, muff diver, heartbreaker, sweats big, heart of gold,

Worst experience:

Interviews. Having to agree with pretty much EVERYTHING someone says sucks. "So, we sell lighting products. Does this product interest you?" How the hell are you supposed to reply to that. "Sir ... I LOVE lighting products; it's been my interest for years now. I just want the opportunity to work with these fascinating products." Interviews suck!

Best campus fad: The Facebook. Yeah it took you about a month to figure it out that scanning familiar faces and joining groups that show your support for kittens wasn't that cool, but you still get that rush when you contemplate whether or not to "Add to Friends." The Facebook also won "Best way to judge your popularity."

Worst way to say goodbye to high school or college:

Come back and visit. When you graduate, detach yourself, don't come back to "see old friends" and "remember the good times." You won't be reliving the good times, you'll be an even bigger loser than you were.

Best way to get ripped off: Buy/sell textbooks at the Georgia Tech Bookstore (or even Engineer's Bookstore). This store sucks! It charges you way too much for the chemistry pack w/ CD-ROM included and then gives you dirt back. Check out the convenience of reserving your books online; that's gotta be the stupidest idea ever (besides online laundry tracking system) and probably only the dumbest, worried freshman fall for it. amazon.com half.com gtboktrade.net. If you're looking to spend more money on things, Georgia Tech merch is great for this purpose.

georgia tech residence hall association

Most overrated organization:

RHA. Although the Residence Hall Association probably does some okay stuff behind-the-scenes, the events that this big-name organization put on fall short, way short. You won't be able to find a sadder event than one of RHA's where they're doing a "fun" BBQ or Free Ice Cream Giveaway. Attendance at these events is consistently pathetic.

Best way to be cool:

Smoke a cigarette. True as gold since middle school, smoking is the way to make friends and gain respect. See some chick you like? How about ask her for a light and maybe share a cig in ultimate romance.

Worst way to be cool:

Join a Frat. Since when does Brotherhood and Secret Rituals make you cool? Remember, you're not really cool if you have to pay for your friends, but then again, if you're a Freshman having trouble fitting in then you should maybe seek refuge in a frat maybe.

Best Scam:

FASET. These liars told you that PSYCH 1000 was a good idea; a 1-credit A is useless. FASET made it seem like every time you walked around on campus, someone would yell "To Hell with Georgia." Lies.

Best thing to say to piss Kevin off: "Dude, you look like Jack Black." Kevin doesn't care that you've seen "School of Rock" and that you liked Jack Black's performance. Saying that he looks like Jack Black is lame-assed. Where's the conversation going to go after you tell him who he looks like? "Yeah, people tell me that sometimes"

Best thing to say to piss Eoin off: "So, Eoin, you're graduating ... You got a big job lined up?" No, I've got damn nothing. I've been really good at not getting jobs these past two semesters. So, now I'm taking the cop-out excuse of "I'm not even interested in those jobs anyway," which is sort of true, but also sort of cop-out.

Best Chopper

Company: West Coast Choppers. Jesse James, resident cool-guy of Callie, was on the street building chops since he was 22. We just don't get choppers like that out East.

Best New Cool:

Pocket Tees. Regular T-shirts are pretty cool, but man, where you gonna stash that loose dollar? You gotta get with the program, and store your extras in your shirt pocket. Good for holding receipts too. Recently, these babies have been selling like hot cakes.

Worst Lame:

Anime. These cartoon's are not entertaining or funny. It's the most boring crap to watch and it somehow inspired a weird following among hardcore nerd.

Worst conversation: Talking about next year's football season. No one cares about what's going on at Spring practice, injuries, or new prospects. The team's going to suck anyway, so why bother passing out your ideas on how they can improve. "I think we'll go 8 and 3 if as long as PJ doesn't get hurt, and Reggie's on target."

Best Game: Punch Buggy. There's nothing better than hanging with your buds and watching for punch buggies. When you see one, you get to punch your friend, and yell "Punch buggy, blue, no punch back." "Jinx one, two, three, four" is also a cool game. You get a lot of Cokes if you play right.
